

IT ISN'T OVER YET!

URANIUM MINING IS STILL A THREAT TO COLORADO

When Governor Ritter signed HB 08-1161 in May of '08, requiring uranium mining companies to prove that they can prevent accidental releases of radionuclides and heavy metals into our groundwater and leave the water as clean as they found it, a lot of people thought that our water now was protected. Not so. It was only the first step. The next step is to draft the rules that will be used to enforce the law.

Your donations are very much needed at this time. State agencies will now draft rules, followed by one or more public hearings. Expert testimony is imperative at this stage, and that costs money. It is critical that the rules are written so we are protected as the law intended. Mining companies will do what they can to weaken the law and are prepared to spend what it takes. We can not allow them to succeed simply because they have more money.

You don't want to see signs like this one in the area where you live. Colorado citizens must remain vigilant to make sure the rules are written so Colorado's environment, water, families, livestock and crops are protected from uranium mining.

To get to where we are today, scores of volunteers have donated time and money, signed resolutions, written letters, sent emails, enlisted neighbors, friends and family, gone to meetings and testified at public hearings. Businesses, organizations, cities and towns have adopted resolutions against uranium mining. Receptive and responsible politicians have done a tremendous amount of work to respond to public concerns and hammer out the laws we asked for.

Now that the law has to be defined and clarified in order to be effective, we need a different kind of grassroots efforts. We worked hard to pass HB08-1161. There can be no loopholes for mining companies to contaminate our water. We need the experts. The best way to continue this fight right now is simply to contribute money.

DONATE NOW! INVEST IN YOUR FUTURE!

Go to www.nunnglow.com and donate online or send a check to Coloradoans Against Resource Destruction, P.O. Box 143, Wellington, CO 80459.

The website has a wealth of information about uranium mining, as does www.Powertechexposed.com.

This poster was put together by a concerned group of CARD supporters.